G. ROBIN SMITH

History you can talk to

"There was magic afoot at our school when Ben Franklin made his appearance!...Franklin was made real...(and) as such, Franklin was seen as a remarkable human being and not a two-dimensional

History you can talk to

DR. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

Born in 1706, a little more than a decade after the Salem Witch Trials ended and at the threshold of the Age of Enlightenment, Benjamin Franklin embodied the energy and vibrancy of this new nation. A self-educated man, Franklin recognized, early on, that knowledge was the key to self-improvement. Throughout his life, Franklin referred to himself as a printer, but Franklin's pursuits as a scientist, innovator, inventor, statesman, and social thinker literally revolutionized his world with works that continue to impact our lives today.

*"It isn't what you know that counts.
It's what you think of in time."
—Ben Franklin*

What is Chautauqua?

CHAUTAQUA is a "presentational" educational tradition that has been enjoyed by audiences for more than 100 years. Started in 1878 at Lake Chautauqua in New York, Chautauqua uses performers, dressed in character, to "present" a variety of topics or personalities and bring them to life. Combining popular education with entertainment, traditionally, Chautauqua topics ranged from history to literature to political presentations. By 1891, Chautauqua was hailed as "...the greatest popular educational movement of modern times," and when Teddy Roosevelt was President he claimed, "The Chautauqua is the most American thing in America." By the turn of the last century, more than 35 million Americans a year attended Chautauqua. Today, G.Robin Smith as Benjamin Franklin, Innovative American, brings the Chautauqua tradition alive for children and adults in the finest tradition of presentational education.
